

Cabin 5: Bill and Jenny Austin

In picturesque Owl Creek valley is where you'll find our next country home. The 1910 farmhouse built by Jenny's grandfather is situated on land that has been in the family since 1849. The Austins have remodeled, refurbished, and redecorated continuously since moving in a short 30 years ago, and still remain hopeful to "git 'r done."

Family heirlooms connect Bill and Jenny to their ancestors. Bill enjoys working at the antique library table in his office, surrounded by his books. Aunt Jane's bronze bookends and accompanying tiny tomes are a particular favorite. Jenny's passion for china, silver, and glassware make for an ever-changing dining experience. The sewing room is where Jenny brainstorms on the next client's color scheme and furniture arrangement as she builds her interior decorating business. The big red table was a $2 auction find and is perfect for stitching up window treatments, pillows, and quilt blocks.

Grandbaby Jackson just celebrated his first birthday. He can dream of turtles, trucks, and tools in his own little room at the top of the stairs when he comes for sleepovers.

Come out to the patio for dessert and a drink before heading off to the next cabin!
